My name is...

I am a mountain pygmy possum from the Snowy Mountains of NSW.

Climate change has affected my hibernation pattern and my food source, the Bogong moth.

There are less than 2000 of us left in Australia and researchers are trying to help protect us as we are an endangered species.

You can help too, by fighting climate change.

Switch off the lights and save electricity. Switching off lights in the city also helps the Bogong moths return to the mountains.
